

METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR REVERSIBLY CORRECTING A NONLINEAR IMPAIRMENT IN A COMMUNICATIONS CHANNEL

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a transmission line, nonlinear impairments resulting from imperfect splices are mitigated by providing a bias current that shifts the operating points of these impairments resulting in improved stability, conductivity and linearity.